THE BALLOTING TO BEGIN TODAY

d Incidents of One of the He test Convention Battles in th lican Party.

By Telegraph to The Times.

MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.,) June 9 .- [Spe cial.] It didn't pay anybody to squander a nickel to ride across the river, for the big convention got together only to take a recess until 8 o'clock tonight, and the proceedings did not contain any more spirit and interest than would a game of mumblepeg among a lot of boys. The lack of incidents really notable here has been more marked, oldtimers say, than was ever before known at a national convention, but that the cyclones will come later on nobody assurances of 521 votes for that candithem out of betting on it. The Blaine men declare it to be a base piece of cheap boomery and that the peerless man from Maine is gaining every hour.

The vote on adjournment this afternoon was thought by some to have some significance, but I fail to see anything in it. The fact is the convention had nothing else to do unless it was to listen to the man Ingalls might be embarrassing.

The California delegation has been until 8 o'clock.

The band played as the people with badges came drifting down the innumerable aisles into their proper places, but there was not an episode other than the buzz of 800 or 900 voices until McKinley strode down to the stage at 11 o'clock and got a heart-warming volley of applause.

THE BADGE CRAZE

Speaking of badges, the man who writes up a national convention ought to have an entire page of 'his paper in which to describe them. They are exploited by the thousands and tens of thousands, until every street in the city is kaleidoscopic with portraits on brawny breasts, and also on some of the other kind, of Blaine, Harrison, McKinley and Alger, the two former predominating in about the same ratio as their names are mentioned in connection with the nomination.

They are of all conceivable shapes and sizes, buttons, ribbons, stars and odd conceptions, bearing either the name or portrait of the wearer's favorite. Countless hawkers line the walks with them for sale. A thousand stands are arranged against the building, on which they are spread in a glittering mass of red, white and blue color, mixed with the metallic sheen of silver, nickel and aluminum. The man, woman or child in the city of Minneapolis who is not wearing some sort of a badge must be mighty lonesome. There is, however, one exception to the rule, and that is the writers who flank the chairman and tell the country what is going on here. Scarcely one of them wears the colors of any chieftain, but apparently holds himself, umpirelike, aloof from taking sides, that everybody may have a fair show in his re port. A drunken Chicago lawyer was making the rounds of the town late last night wearing a red. cigarette hat and covered with every conceivable badge he got his hands on and begging the delegates for more. Barren Victory. MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.,) June 9 .- [Spe-There is a rumor abroad today that the colored troops have discovered that cial.] Tonight's session of the great convention has been lively enough to they hold the balance of power and will make up for the dull season that has make use of it for revenue only. As brooded over the deliberations, and it Alger is the only candidate who has a looks now as though they might conbarrel, the charge is made, as it was four years ago, that he is buying votes; clude to make a night of it. All the big men debated tonight, and one made a but no sensible person takes any stock speech. The venerable Dick Thompson of Indiana, 83 ydars old, whom Chauncey M. After Gen. Bingham had amended the rules to admit the G.A.R. men to the vacant seats in the galleries and a gentleman from Pennsylvania presented a communication about the flood and fire sufferers in the State, Cogswell of Massachusetts offered the report of the Committee on Credentials, which precipitated a lively fight, because the minority had something to say on the subject. It all arose over Alabama, and Senator Cullum of Illinois presented subject. It all arose over Alabama, and Chauncey I. Filley of Missouri was the first one to get in his talk for the adoption of the latter report. He was adoption of the latter report. He was the latter report. Until the whole shooting match was done to a turn. They are but a type of the one and proceeded to taunt Mr. Wolcott for being an office-holder and ne. glecting his post at the capitol.

> Wolcott got a rousing cheer for his reply, which was that he was not an appointee of the President, but was representing the Republicans of his State here as he did in Washington. Then Depew took a hand and voiced the sentiments of the Harrisonites.

Warner Miller, getting into the other was a yard of blue ribbon bearing his lieutenants, told me today that Blaine's camp and in the face of the chairman's nomination is assured beyond the repeated rapping of the gavel to call shadow of a doubt. For myself, I will him to time, insisted on the majority say that it looks just as badly mixed as giving reasons for their report.

but very few found out what it was all about, but it appeared to be, from my vicinity, a battle cry for freedom of one kind or another.

As Cogswell had moved the previous question a roll-call was got at, but Depew registered a kick at the outset because the Alabama delegates were all voting, though six of them were not yet seated. Peace was restored by the chairman of the delegation withdrawing the obnoxious six votes. After a tedious time Virginia was finally reached upon the stroke of midnight, whereupon every arc light in the building flickered and went out, leaving 10,000 fanning human beings in obscurity for twenty minutes. But for a few gas lights around the hall the darkness would have been total.

The result of the vote, 4281/4 favoring the minority, and 463% against it, was taken by the Harrison men to mean a sure victory for their man, and they all shouted and cheered for several minutes.

LOOKS LIKE A DARK HORSE.

The situation is little changed by this vote. Massachusetts and Michigan will vote for dark horses, thus taking away from Harrison enough votes to defeat him on the first ballot. To my mind it looks more like a compromise candidate than it has at any time. This dispatch is closed at 1 a.m. while a second roll call is being had on the other "Alabama case." Keep your eye out for the dusky steed in the distance. A ballot may be expected tomorrow.

MORNING SESSION.

Little Done-An Adjournment Pending the Credentials Report. MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.,) June 9.—[By the Associated Press.] The day opened bright and very warm. As the morning hours grew, people assembled. They brought fans and the great audipalm leaves. As heretofore, the leaders were cheered on their appearance and there finally came to be a rivalry between the Blaine and Harrison factions as to which could greet its prominent men most noisily.

It was nearly 11:30 when Chairman McKinley rapped the convention to order and announced that Rev. William Brush, chancellor of the University of South Dakota, would offer a prayer.

After the prayer the chairman called for the report of the Committee on Credentials, and a round of applause greeted Chairman Cogswell as he arose. He announced that the committee was a resolution indorsing the World's Fair resolution that all Grand Army men be permitted to enter the hall and occupy seats vacant thirty minutes after the beginning of the session. This was referred to the Commistee on Rules.

Ex-Gov. Sewell of New Jersey moved a recess till o'clock pending the report of the Committee on Credentials. The Harrison men objected to this. and Lawson of New York demanded a rising vote.

were notably in favor of adjournment, while Wisconsin, Missouri and several while wisconsin, ansour and several strongly Harrison States opposed it. After a careful count of heads Chair-man McKinley said: "Yeas 407, nays 280," and the convention concluded to adjourn until 8 o'clock this evening.

Applause followed the announcement. The standing vote in the affirmative was very large and it seemed carried by practical unanimity

DURING RECESS.

Harrison Men Agressive—Renewed Talk of McKinley, Sherman and Allison. MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.,) June 9.—[By the Associated Press. | The hour for street parades or exuberant demonstrations in the hotel corridors has passed and has been succeeded by an silent, almost frantic, political activity. Both parties seemed to realize that Republican endurance had reached the limit, of its patience, and that the fac-tions which fought for the delay of the material progress of the convention would become unpopular and be carried down by the tide. Since the adjourn-ment of the convention this afternoon both elements have made last strenuous attempts to hold their forces together and defeat the opposition. At no time since the convention opened have the demands for a compromise candidate been so expressed as today, and it may be said that the convention is divided into three elements, the administration records. Being forces and the conserva-

FAIR BRIDES FROM SWEDEN. A Bevy of Beautiful Girls Come Here to

New York Press. The registering clerks at Ellis Island were busily engaged in taking the pedigrees of the immigrants who were being passed at the landing-station at Ellis Island yesterday when a bevy of twenty-five beautiful Swedish girls, with red cheeks, blue eyes and blonde hair, were ushered in by Chief Gateman hair, were usnered in by Caler Gateman Seitz. The young women all had fine figures, were dressed even better than the usual class of Swedish immigrants and all laughed and joked, a thing that is seldom done by the immigrants.

PUZZLED COL. WEBER. Col. Weber was standing in the registry department looking at the imm grats when the girls were passed There was something about them that was out of the common and which seemed to impress the genial commissioner as needing investigation. He asked Clerk Van Dusen what their arrival meant and gained no information. The employés of the Central Labor Bureau had an eye on the girls, but had not been able to fathom the object of asked her what she came to the United States for.

The maiden was coy. Her cheeks were red as June cherries, but the question sent a food of color through them which made her face look not unlike a setting sun. And as she answered his question she hung her head, but from the corner of one of her laughing eyes looked up in the Colonel's stern but kind face.

A VENTURE OF NEW FORTUNES.

"Why, we have come here to be mar-ried," she said. "Friends of ours out in Minnesota wrote to Sweden that young women were wanted for the wives of farmers in the West. We held a meetrarmers in the west. We held a meeting at our home, near Stockholm, and decided to immigrate to the United States. Before purchasing our tickets we sent photographs to Minnesota, which were readily gobbled up by the farmers. Some of us have had as many as a dozen offers of marriage."

The missionaries of Ellis Island had some doubts as to the object of the girls in coming to this country, but after hearing the stories of the maidens they concluded that everything was all right and gave the young women their bless-ings. The Swedish girls were shipped to the West last night.

Humane Officer Wright yesterday swore to two complaints against Joe running th table resort known as "Mother" Brown's, on the East Side, before Justice Stanton, one charging him with selling liquor without a license and the other with keeping a disorderly house. rest, and he was taken into court by Constable Rogers. His trial was set for Tuesday at 4 p.m. in one case and Wednesday at 4 p.m. in the other. Bail was fixed at $1000 in one case and $500 in the other, which was given, and the prisoner was released. Wright thinks he will have no difficulty in securing a conviction in both cases. He has more than enough évidence already, which was brought out in the Percival examination, and out in the Percival examination, and thinks he can get more if it is needed. Mr Wright has inaugurated a crusade against these places, and as he has the support of the Supervisors and the Police Commissioners it is probable that at least the worst of them will be ody Viewed by Hundreds of People Not One of Whom Had Ever Seen the Face Before-The Inquest Today.

The unknown woman who committed suicide Thursday afternoon on a child's grave at Rosedale cemetery still remains unidentified on the marble slab at Nickelson & Chase's undertaking parlors on Second street.

Hundred of people viewed the re-mains yesterday, but no one had ever seen the face before, except two or three people who saw her at the cemetery a few hours before she took her life.

Coroner Weldon visited the cemetery again yesterday morning and made several efforts to read the lead pencil writings on the curbing around the grave of little Mary Thomas, where the body of the unfortunate woman was

The pencil found in the dead woman's pocket had evidently been used on rock, for it was worn down to the wood, showing that she had made several efforts to leave some message. She must have waited till the poison began to take effect before she used the percit, and then it was too late to write plainly, and the Coroner failed to be able to read a single work. able to read a single word, and her last able to read a single word, and her last message is lost forever.

It is supposed that she wrote on the stone for the reason that she did not have a single scrap of paper, and it was too late to go in search of any.

Why she should have chosen the unkept grave of little. Mary Thomas, for so tragic an ending, is a mystery. The lot belongs to David Thomas, and the child was buried in June, 1887, but no trace of the owner of the lot could be found, and it is supposed that the family left the city after the child was buried, but the dead woman has never been a mother, so it is evident that grief for the dead baby did not cause her to commit suicide.

Police Surgeon Bryant held a post mortem on the remains yesterday morning and decided that while she may be mortem on the remains yesterday morning and decided that while she may be a wife she has never been a mother. This makes her rash act more of a mystery than it was before, for it was believed that she would not have selected the grave to die on unless its inmate was something to her.

She was in perfect health and died from a large dose of morphine. An examination of the brain did not develop any signs of insanity, and her features do not show that she has suffered from any mental troubles.

A few hours before the body was found a barber on Washington street saw a woman who answers her description talking to a street car conductor. She boarded the car for the cemetery, and he and he did not see her again. The con

It is believed that she is a stranger in the city, but she has so effectually oncealed her identity that she will robably have to be buried in an unprobably have to be mown grave, unless she is identified from a photograph that Coroner Weldon had taken yesterday, for she will probably be past recognition this morning as decomposition set in yesterday.

An inquest will be held at 10:30 this morning.

Habits of Insects.

Habits of Insects.

A gentleman who was fond of studying the habits of insects, found one day a large spider near a pond of water. He took a long stick and put the spider on the end of it. He then went to the side of the pond and stretching out as far as he could reach, fixed the other end in the bottom of the pend, and left the stick standing straight up out of the water with the spider upon it. He the water with the spider upon it. He then sat down on the bank to watch what the spider would do. It first went down the stick until it came to the water, but finding that there was no hope of getting off there, it returned to the top. It then went up and down the different sides of the stick, feeling and looking carefully, till it found that there was no way of escape at any part. Then it went once more to the top, and remained quiet for awhile, as if thinking what to do. After a short pause the insect began to spin a thread, long the water with the spider upon it. what to do. After a short pause the insect began to spin a thread, long enough to reach from the stick to the edge of the pond. When this was done it fastened one end of the thread to the top of the stick, and let the rest float in the breeze. It waited till the wind stretched the thread out towards the side of the pond. The insect then went crawling along the thread till it reached the end. After floating in the air a little while it alighted safely on the ground and scampered off to its home.

Old Jewelry. [Chicago Mail.]

Chicago Mail.

There are very few jewelry stores which will purchase worn or new jewelry over the counter, and those that do make a practice, or even an exception, of doing so, are naturally looked upon with a certain amount of suspicion. In some Eastern cities quite a profitable business is carried on in what is practically illegal pawning, because in a majority of instances a temporary loan is asked for, although it is understood no attempt will be made to redeem. The police especially object to this, because when hunting stolen jewelry and watches they have access to pawn-brokers' books and are generally assisted very courteously in their work, whereas if the goods are sold or deposited at stores not licensed as pawn shops, they are practically buried and cannot be examined without the aid of a search warrant. Jewelry is the hardest thing to trace, because a dishonest jeweler can buy it at half its value and melt the gold beyond recognition.

OUILLIAM'S BAND IS FAILING.

He is Said to Be Becoming a Fanatic and the Mohammedans Object.

There are signs of impending collapse in the British Mohammedan community at Liverpool, which organization attracted much attention about a year ago, and was expected by some enthusiasts to exercise a strongly modifying ago, and was expected by some enthuslasts to exercise a strongly modifying influence upon the religious thought of England. The Sultan patronizes the society, and it has received the blessing of Mollahs of Islam. The founder of the society, Mr. Onilliam, is a singular character, with a good many of the qualities which have made Olcutt so successful in leading and stimulating the English adherents of another Oriental cult. The English members are described as mostly of the uncultured class. Onilljam has of late shown signs of becoming iam has of late shown signs of becoming a fanatic and is accused of assuming the airs of a prophet. His course has aroused opposition and jealousy in the community and the so-called mosque where the religious services are held has been the scene of several angry dis-putes. Six of the members of the sect have seceded from Ouilliam's band as a result of these dissensions. Dr. Martyn result of these dissensions. Dr. Martyn Clark, the well-known Mohammedan scholar, has declared open war upon Ouilliam, accusing him of professing Islamism merely for purposes of persona gain. Those who side with Clark have city from California, has in the Tribune of June 1 an exceedingly interesting talk on California fruit, from which we take some of the facts and figures.

Four years ago, Mr. Goodsell says, 1,000,000 pounds of California fruit were sold in New York: last year 7,000,000 pounds found purchasers in that city, and this year there will be sent to that city for sale, at least 20,000,000 pounds. The fruit productions 000,000 pounds. The fruit production of California amounts to $35,000, tion of California amounts to $35,000,000 a year more than the production of gold, the fruit amounting to $50,000,000 annually.

Mr. Goodsell goes on to say that land that in 1849 was used only to dig gold out of is now growing wheat and fruit that sells for $100,000,000, the value of the two products being about equally divided. Besides this, Spain, France and Turkey formerly supplied America with 110,000,000 pounds of raisins and prunes that are annually consumed but now these fruits are grown so extensively in this State that the foreig tensively in this State that the foreign products have been driven out of the market. In three years, says Mr. Goodsell, the production in California will be enough to supply America and preclude importations altogether.

This is only a very small part of Mr. Goodsell's "talk," but it is enough to close the mouths of the croakers, who can see no future for California. It is the testimony of a man who has studied the testimony of a man who has studied the subject and who can have no ble interest in misrepresenting the con-dition of affairs. The article empha-sizes the point on which the Chronicle has insisted so many times, that this an extremely short-sighted policy on the part of the Transcontinental Association not to favor the rapid and in its power so as to build up one of the greatest of California's industries.

Iron Production in the South. Tron Production in the South. (Chicago Tribune.)
There are now south of the Potomac and the Ohio, east of the Mississippi and in Texas, eighty-nine completed bituminous furnaces and forty-seven completed charcoal furnaces, a majorit of the whole being of large capacity and modern equipment. Their ag-gregate capacity is 3,216,071 gross tons per annum, and a somewhat smaller number in the South actually produced 1,596,339 gross tons in the year 1890. Most of the owners of Southern furnaces are supplied with raw mate-rials at low cost because of their near-ness, as well as on account of the cheap labor that is employed in their produ tion. Most of them also possess the advantage of cheap transportation rates to Northern and Western markets. Hence they could better afford to accept low prices for their pig iron than many of their competitors further parts. north, and Southern pig iron would be the first to fall in price, as the market would narrow from a decreased demand or be burdened with an over-supply. This Southern competition has been supplied to the property of the present the price. north Southern iron tion now presses heavily upon the pig-iron manufacturers of the North and West, and Mr. Swank says broadly that until the consumptive demands of the country materially increase, or all all badly located furnaces in the North and West, and in the South as well, are put West, and in the South as well, are put out of the blast, we may expect to see low prices for pig iron continue except possibly for Bessemer pig, which the South does not produce in large quan-tities. Our pig-iron capacity is beyond present needs. The production of last year was almost a million tons less than that of 1890.

Prayer Answered.
A little Liverpool boy had committed some misdemeanor for which he was about to receive punishment at the hands of his mother. The boy begged to be first allowed to go to his room. Permission was granted, and the child went up stairs to his own room and closed the door behind him. The mother followed and listened outside, after telling him he must hurry down again to receive punishment. MRS. WILL'AMS'S ENTERTAINMENT. The entertainment given under the direction of Miss Josephine Williams at Temperance Temple last evening attracted an audience which thoroughly appreciated the merits of the enter tainment. Part first was made up of musical se lections entirely, with the exception of a recitation by Miss Williams and one by G. A. Dobinson, both of whom received and responded to encores. Mr. Dobinson's first selection was Hood's "Bridge of Sighs." Throwing into tone and manner all that pathetic pity which so completely overshadows the human judgment of the erring, and which is so strongly brought out in this masterpiece of Hood's, he won a recall and responded with a recitation of less ploomy cast, introducing something of the comic he comic. Miss Williams's best work was done

Mrs. Adolf Goldsmith, corner of Seventh and Hope streets, presented a very gay appearance last Sunday night, the happy occasion being a confirmation party, tendered to their son Joe. The spacious parlors were beautifully decorated with fragrant flowers and quantities of paims. In one corner of the room a temporary stage had been erected for the occasion, which was a bower of beauty, palms and flowering plants entirely concealing the orchestra, whose entrancing strains of music furnished inspiration for the young folks. In a corner directly opposite the stage, in a little nook, was the punch bowl, where one could be re-freshed with either delicious punch or lemonade. After four hours of games and dancing, the guests proceeded to the dining-hall, where an elegant re-past was served, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present, judging from the manner in which the sweets disappeared. After supper dancing was re sumed until the early hours of the morn ing, when the merry young folks were chaperoned to their homes by Mr. Gold smith, who had the Hollenbeck bus en

Date Culture.

[American Agriculturist.]
In reply to the inquiry of a California subscriber, Prof. H. E. Van Deman, United States pomologist, writes us: "While it is quite true that the date will grow very readily from seeds, it is in-expedient to try and propagate it in this way, because the species is diœcious and a large proportion of the seedling plants will be males. As to the pistil-late plants there is no certainty as to what quality of fruit they may bear. The only sure method to secure good fruit is to take suckers from about the fruit is to take suckers from about the base of bearing trees which have proven to be choice varieties. These, when roots are formed, will grow and produce fruit like the original tree. This method is practiced in date-growing countries. Many growers do not have even one male tree but depend opn buying staminate flowers of their eighbors at the proper season. These are tied to the leaf stocks above the clusters of pistillate flowers so that the pollen may fall upon them. One male pollen may fall upon them. One male tree will produce pollen for from twenty to fifty pistillates. Within the last two years a number of suckers from bearing trees, of the very choicest varieties grown in Egypt, Algeria and Arabia, have been imported by the United States Department of Agriculture and are now growing in California, Arizona and New Mexico. pollen may fall upon them. night in camp, and that is his first night out of it, when he has a bath and a good bed with fresh sheets. This is enough to establish the fact that it is only by contrasts that the salient points of things are developed. If a man has a good home and a good bed, and a furnace to keep the house at a proper temperature at all times, he ought to happy. Add to that a good cook and a happy family, and he should desire to stay in that place and enjoy it. Even if he wants a change and a rest, he could find places equally comfortable and easy of access; but there are men who get up from the breakfast table and say to their wives, "Now I can't stand this thing any longer," and the stand this thing any longer," and the good little woman knows that the spell is on him. He goes off up stairs and gets out a trunk, and then from the depths of a far-off closet he hauls down some disreputable old clothes and lugs out a gun and a lot of rods and fly cases and ammunition and lays them tenderly in the bottom of the trunk. He gets "a shocking bad hat," and a pipe which madam will not allow in the settled part of the house and strange cases made of canvas which carry the charms and fetiches of the sportsman. These he places in the sportsman. These he places in the trunk. He then overhauls his "kit." He sticks "fly hooks" up in rows in the pillow-shams if madam is not looking. He puts tallow-covered cartridges on the lace bed cover and then carefully lays a heavy pair of very greasy and dirty cowhide shoes on his wife's most choice piece of upholstered furniture. In the midst of this in walks the lady of the house, the partner of his joys and sorrows. In this case the joys and sorrows do not mix. Madam says: "Now, lack—I think it is awful for you to not. Jack—I think it is awful for you to put those nasty old things on my bed—you have no consideration, etc., etc.," and poor Jack transfers them all to the floor, while off flounces the lady to tell the maid that she must "go through that room thoroughly, as Mr. B—— has been packing his nasty old traps and has nearly rulned everything." To develop, your real sportsman the environment must be favorable at a very early age. If he is favorably situated he becomes possessed of an unbounded enthusiasm and more robis of the sport-ing craft than has a dentist in his. A great many people are now growing up in America whose tendencies are an illegitimate cross between an English bat ue and an American summer hotelthey are a sort of "arrested develop-ment" between true hunters and fisher-men and people who are not financially able to buy a country place. All such are spurious and not to be considered seriously. The genuine American lover of the woods did not gather his theories of how to be happy from "shooting on of how to be happy from "shooting on his estate," or proceeding against ti-gers with the entire organized population of an Eastern principality, or from dilettante literature on how to do the thing so that "it will stand wash."

He first passed his boyhood in a country where the squirrels were pretty thick and the trout would bite and the old gentlemen were never ceasing in telling how they killed "the biggest buck I ever sot my eyes onto." He then tried the Adirondacks until they became infested with women and sumbecame infested with women and summer hotels. Then he tried Maine, but Maine got filled up with persons who wore two peaks on their hats and ate their dinner on a table, and the guides became servants instead of woodsmen. Then he discovered Canada and the Rocky Mountains, and away in the heart of their wildernesses you will find his "bark lean-to," where the timber grows the highest over the little spring, and and where the "dude has ceased from This sportsman has got a moral mort-gage on a little pond somewhere away off up somewhere, and he won't tell you where it is because he don't want you

You may not recognize this man of the woods in New York or Philadelphia. the woods in New York or Philadelphia, because he has trained himself to be as much like the rest of humanity as possi ble in order that he may make a little money, so that he may go hunting once or twice a year and be his own natural self for a space. When the buds open and the grass shoots, and the sunlight thaws out his mind, he will manifest uncasiness and become unsettled. You can begin to detect him then. He won't care about the frost and the peach crop, or the candidates, or Anarchists, but he will be morbid and go on incoherently about brown-hackels, 8 shot, and improved Winchester models and other profitless subjects.

Late in the season he gets down his double-barrel and his rifle and begins to oil them up. He takes out his peajacket and his oil-tanned moccasins and his isages. He is constantly writing his jaegers. He is constantly writing letters to "Sam Bushcraft, Mountain letters to "Sam Bushcraft, Mountain Pine, Missoula county, Montana," or to "Pierre Antoine, Temistamang, Onta-rio, Canada," and received replies in brown or yellow envelopes signed with his (x) mark. Why he becomes so in-terested in these half savage men in the waste places, only he can underthe waste places, only he can understand. This curious person does not want to go with madam to the White Mountains or the New England Coast, begs off and goes up to conspire with his friend, Dr. Swellkill, who is a hundred to the work of the wor his friend, by Swelishi, who is a fun-ter and old comrade. They sit in the forward end of the canoes with a stumpy beard and a buil-dog pipe, dressed in dirty, greasy clothes, while behind the pans, blankets, clothes, while behind the pans, blankets, packs and guns sits a strange, dark-skinned, beetle-browed half-breed, with scraggy hair and a bristling beard. The canoes cleave the mirrored waters while the yellow reflections mix with the Vandyck shadows of the overhanging forest in the lake. They are happy.

If they are not here then they are on little scraggy ponies, herding other scraggy ponies bearing packs and all following an uncouth and piratical man who is just ahead urging his own horse over logs and up the stony bed of a dry stream. As though not satisfied with traveling by night and by day for a traveling by night and by day for a week away from their cozy homes in New York, they are now making desperate haste to go up a bleak mountain range in far-off Idaho as though in search of the jumping-off place of the world. :

It would be interesting to understand this man so prone to these lapses of savagery. We readily comprehend one who at times becomes a wfully drunk for days at a time and call it a nervous disease and give it a scientific name which ease and give it a scientific name which clears it of mystery. We know why the man leaves his native city in the height of the business and social season and deports himself to the West Indies—his bronchial tubes are on a strike. We of course see that another takes himself of course see that another takes nimself off to Europe, but he goes to cultivate his mind and to be lazy and dissolute, but here is this man whose business and social life call for his attendance, whose health is offensively rugged, and he does this strange thing. He eats the worst imaginable food, all coked in a disgnature fashion, he sleep in a sort disgusting fashion, he sleeps in a sort of kennel like a farmer's dog—lying on brush and with the smoke blowing all through and around him. He freezes nearly to perishing every morning—he goes to bed wet to the hide and paddles post of currents or toils under a sixty-pound pack all day and his only reason seems to be a desire to slay. You doubtless all know one of this sort of men-ask him why? In all probability he will fold himself in his probability he will fold himself in his robe of superiority and simply pity your varnished ignorance and will not deign to reply. He will consider you hopeless, weak—lacking character and sentiment—but if you would know why he does it go with him when the spell is on him and find out. If you do not like it you will at least know why.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Economy in School Books. Los Angeles, June 8.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] The time seems appropriate to respectfully call the attention of the city Board of Education to the almost universal desire on the part of our citizens, and especially the taxpayers, to keep down the expenses incident to the adoption of text ooks to the lowest level compatible with books to the lowest level compatible with good systems and success. Especially where good books 'are now in use we hope that the board will respect the present condition of fathers and heads of families and not lay any additional expense upon us when not absolutely necessary.

To illustrate: we hear an express intention of the board to do away entirely with our present excellent 'series of music books, with which all are familiar and which have given such good satisfaction to discriminating teachers, and with which most families in the city are already supplied, and substitute therefor something new, untried, and the cost of which is problematical to most parents. We have a cheap series and a good one, and with the years' experience myself I can assure any years' experience myself I can assure any one that there is no better plan extant for a line teacher to follow and use than the one now in use.

The writer has probably had more experience as a member of a board of education, in the selection of text books and as a teacher than any member of your present honorable board, and feels justified to thus nonorable board, and feels justified to funs counsel, especially in reference to the music books, where no change could be for the better and might prove doubly unfortunate. We shall await the action of the board with much interest. PARENT.

Newsboys' Home. Los Angeles, June 8 .- To the Editor of THE TIMES.] This morning business called me to the vicinity of the old Ducommun mansion, No. 527 Ducommun street, and which is now occupied as a news and workwhich is now occupied as a news and working boys' home.

It appears that some good, kind-hearted and charitable ladies there maintain an institution that must meet the most cordial approval of all good citizens.

Boys without homes, or boys whose widowed mothers are compelled by poverty to "work out," of good character, here find a comfortable home, light, well-ventil lated rooms, good bedding and good and substantial food, in fact, a delightful home. It is not intended for idlers, but for working boys. A kind-hearted and motherly lady is in charge as matron, one whom I'm sure the boys cannot fall to love and respect.

The home is made attractive with a garden and interesting books. The boys' are den and interesting books. The boy charged the nominal sum of 5 cents a meal and the same sum for lodging, and few boys with a full complement of parents can hoast a more comfortable home or have more wholesome food. The home is good enough for anybody.

It is no new institution, I learn, but has he is no new institution. I learn, out has been maintained for several years—in an-other part of the city—and has just been moved to the new and desirable quarters on account of the advanced rent at the on account of the advanced rent at the former location.

Of course the trifling amount paid by the boys—and exacted more, I take it, to encourage a habit of saving—goes but a little ways toward meeting the necessary outlay. The subscriptions of individuals has largely sustained it heretofore, and many kindhearted persons have paid a regular sum monthly. Some are unable to continue their subscriptions longer. The ladies need assistance, No one who visits the Home can help but take an interest in it.

The matron and ladies are only too glad to receive visitors, and all are cordially welcome.

will you (THE TIMES) help them in their will you (THE TIMES) neep them in their good work by calling attention to this commendable work? I'm sure you will, and hence, through you, ask others to add their dollar to the one I inclose as a nucleus for the "News and Working Boys" Home Fund."

[American Cúltivator.] Edwin J. Doty, Meager county, Mont. writes us that of all the methods that he has tried to prevent cows from kicking, the most certain is to take a small rope about twenty feet long, with a loop in one end, throw it over the back and across the loins, and get hold back and across the loins, and get hold of the loop with a stick if the cow is unruly. Bring it just in front of the udder, pass the rope through the loop and draw tight, then stand off the length of the rope and let her have her "buck out," and then go up and tie firmly. It is impossible for a cow to kick with this contrivance on. After a it has always proved a success. It will also break a cow of the habit of moving around the yard while being milked, as it is painful for her to take a step while the rope is on.

"Fam sure, then, that I can do nothing with the doctor—he, too, will go—it is so unfortunate to have such tastes."

From that time on the doctor's health begins to fail. A brother physician recommends the "woods." and while it is so unfortunate to be compelled to leave his patients, yet his health demands it, and one fine morning the man and his friend, the doctor, are missed from the haunts of men.

In a few days the trim, well-groomed city men are no longer recognizable. United States Treasury Agent Tanner re

AMUSEMENTS.

AT THE PLAYHOUSES

GRAND OPERAHOUSE.—Blue Jeans, which was produced for the first time in this city last night, more than fulfills the promises which preceded it, and a more enjoyable play has not been seen here for a very long time past. The plot is neither particularly new, complicated nor strong, but Jošeph Arthur excelled himself in his treatment of it. It involves the story of a young man who falls a victim to the sensuous beauty who falls a victim to the sensuous beauty of a girl of gypsy extraction, whom he marries, only to find later on that she has another husband. He leaves her and falls in love with a poor orphan, who reciprocates his feeling. They marry; and the other woman, moved by revenge, induces a former lover to kill the hero, which he atempis to do in the former's sawmill, but is prevented by the heroine, and everything is finally cleared up in a highly satisfactory manner.

The company by whom it is interpreted in an unsually good one. As "June," the poor bould girl, Miss Laura Burt delighted the audience from beginning to end, her performance on their masson did excellent work as "Sue End'aly," the female villain, and Mariam Strickland's character sketch of "Samanthe Hankins" was great. Little Mabel was remarkably precoclous. The of "Sanianthe Hankins" was great. Little Mabel was remarkably precocious. The chief honors among the male contingent were carried off by Lawrence Hanley and A. C. Moreland. The former as "Perry Bascomb," the hero, was manly and sympathetic, while the latter made a distinct bit as "Col. Risener." the politician. The rest all contribute to the success of the performance, the Columbia quartette and the Rising Sun Roarers brass band being repeatedly recalled.

Taken as a whole, Blue Jeans is a show that nefther old nor young should miss:

It will be repeated tonight and tomorrow.

Senator Allison is also frequently more popular. The anti-Harrison people are exultant over the fact that in several contests decided by the Credentials Committee Blaine gains over Harrison in about the ratio of two to claim that they made yesterday. The attempt of the Southern colored delegates to act in unison has not resulted in anything satisfactory.

Considerable comment was occasioned

Kinley, referring to the incipient boom which started for him, said: "I cannot with honorable fidelity to John Sher man nor consistently with my own per sonal integrity consent for my name to be used as a candidate in the conven-tion." The reason for issuing the cir-cular appears uncertain, but many seem to think it the work of Harrison dele-gates who view with envy the promi-nence McKinley's name is receiving and are disposed to take the position that he cannot consistently allow his friends to make him a candidate, while he is working for Harrison. But it is easily seen that McKinley's position today is totally different from that of 1888.

The rumor was current here today that Blaine had sent a communication withdrawing his name, but when the matter was brought to the attention of Senator Quay of Pennsylvania he said there was no truth in it. Joseph Man-ley also denied the rumor.

Tonight an official notice was issued from the Harrison headquarters saying:

Since it was demonstrated by the unanimous expression of a large majority of the delegates to the national convention, at the meeting today, that President Harrison is their choice for leader in the impending campaign, the question has been asked of delegates favorable to him whether his friends will consider the expédiency of his retirring and joining in the nomination of a new man. The uniform reply has been, and will continue to be, that the judgment of the party having been definitely ascertained to be favorable to his candidacy, his supporters will not participate in an effort to reverse that judgment. At no time will there be consideration by them of any other candidate.

CONVENTION HALL, MINNEAPOLIS, June 9.- [By the Associated Press.] The first evening session of the Republican convention was characterized by the same lack of eager interest on the part of visitors and delegates which was remarked at the previous session. Up to the last moment, the same uncertainty was manifested as to the intentions of the Blaine managers regarding the presentation of Blaine's name. Some thought it would be better not to form ally present him to the convention and, although Foraker was detailed for the duty, it was stated that he and Plat were both inclined to the belief that it would be wiser not to formally present Blaine to the convention. When it was known that the Harrison people had decided to restrict nominating and seconding speeches, and the Blaineites would probably not nominate formally, the deepest interest was manifested by both galleries and delegates, as to the uncertainty of the proceedings and every phase of the session was watched with breathless interest.

CHICAGO, June 9 .- [By the Associated Press.] A suit for breach of promise of marriage for $50,000 damages has been instituted in the Superior Court by Mrs. Jessie Hall, a former actress, whose stage name was Dorathea Lewis, against James W. Paige of Hartford, Ct. Paige is a manufacturer of machinery. Mrs. Hall's attorney says that Paige is several times a millionaire. He made the acquaintance of Mrs. Hall in Hartford. Under promise of marriage he induced her to quit the stage and go to live with him two years ago. He was finally brought to fix the day for the marriage at Milwaukee April 22 last. He arrived there and declined to

It transpires that an action was begun in the Police Court here a few days ago by Stephen Rogers of Hartford, Ct., against Mrs. Hall and E. N. Grant. charging them with passing as man and wife, though not married.

Another Whisky Man Arrested. CINCINNATI, June 9 .-- Lewis Green cting president of the Whisky Trust, was arrested on a Boston indictment and required to give bonds for his appearance. He refused to do so. The United States Commissioner then put Min in custody of the United States, Marshal. An attorney sued out a writ of habeas corpus which was allowed. In the United States court the hearing was set for Saturday. Green's object is to force a hearing on the indictment here instead of in Boston.

USINESS in this house is fully one-third larger than one year ago; there is a reason for it-efforts have been made in one direction only to acquire business: to establish a reputation for good, square dealing, good square treatment and just methods. We refund money on any and all goods returned in a good, merchantable condition. We close every evening in the week at 6 o'clock. We do not ask or expect any one else to close Saturday nights unless it is their wish. We have no fault to find with any other merchant and have nothing to say against them. In making a comparison at present it is to show that the methods adopted by this house are correct, and in making this comparison it is not done to slur any other merchant. One house in the city advertised very widely that their business was nothing near what it was one year ago, and at the same time advertised extraordinary inducements for a Saturday night. This house closes every Saturday, and we are ready and prepared to make a sworn statement that this business is one-third larger than one year ago. Some may believe it is the proper thing to offer special inducements Saturday nights. We believe it is a mistake for this reason: Country trade is entitled to the same prices as city trade, and we believe in giving the same prices to one that we do to another, and in doing so we are not only doing right, but we are making friends for this business; country people cannot trade at night and we cannot afford to charge them more than we do city trade. Laboring men are working hard for shorter hours. A few may take advantage of a Saturday night special, but the large majority will not—there is nothing in it for them. Let a strike be made by any trades union in this city for shorter working hours and how long would it be before Saturday night specials would drop out of sight. Laboring men, we ask you as laboring men if Saturday night closing is not cor-

The chief point in Filley's argument in behalf of the minority report was that the regular organization of the party in the Alabama case had been barred from the regular place of meeting by the United States deputy marshals, but Massey of Delaware maintained that the case was considered fairly upon its merits and that the majority report should be adopted.

Senator Wolcott of Colorado in speaking for the minority report not only denounced the deputy marshals of Aiabama, but hundreds of office-holders who were present in the galleries and hall of the convention, crowding out the people's delegates in a frantic attempt to renominate the President. Wolcott's speech was answered by Hart of West Virginia.

The greatest interest was manifested when Col. Duffield of Detroit, an Alger manager, arose to speak in favor of the minority report. His action was interpreted as meaning that the Alger people were prepared to vote with the Blaine people.

It came in the shape of a movement a minority report as to silver so as to precipitate a fight over the silver question on the floor of the convention. T. J. Andrews and Orlando King of Denver, representing the Colorado Silver League and, semi-officially, the Westerners, invaded the committee room with a minority report, coming out briefly.

Ex-Senater Miller of New York spoke for the minority and said he had listened to many reports of Committees on Credentials, but this was the first augurate the fight temporarily, at least. The two silver men were doomed to disappointment. Their friends were headed off by the revision sub-commit-tee, which had the right of way, but, it not being ready, a motion for a reces was quickly sprung and carried.

The representatives of the Republican party of the United States, assembled in general convention on the shores of the Mississippi River, the everiasting bond of an indestructible republic, whose most glorious chapter of history is the record of the Republican party, congratulate their countrymen on the majestic march of the Nation under banners inscribed with the principles of our platform in 1888, vindicated by victory at the polls and prosperity in fields, workshops and mines, and make the following declaration of principles.

PROTECTION AND RECIPBOCITY.

We reasure the American doctrine of

We realism the American doctrine of protection. We call attention to its growth abroad. We maintain that the prosperous condition of our country is largely due to the wise revenue legislation of a Republican Congress. We believe that all articles which cannot be produced in the United States, except luxuries, should be admitted free of duty, and that on all imports coming into competition with the products of American labor there should be levied duties equal to the difference between wages abroad and at home. We assert that the prices of manufactured articles of general consumption have been reduced under the operations of the tariff act of 1890. We denounce the efforts of the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives to destroy our tariff laws piece-meal, as is manifested by the attacks upon wool, lead and lead ores, the chief products of a number of States, and we ask the people for their judgment thereon.

We point to the success of the Republican policy of reciprocity under which our export trade has vastly increased, and new and enlarged markets have been opened for the products of our farms and work shops. We remind the people of the bitter opposition of the Democratic party to this practical business measure, and claim that executed by a Republican administration, our present laws will eventually give us control of the trade of the world.

THE SILVER PLANK.

The American people from tradition and interest favor bi-metallism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with such restrictions and under such provisions to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of the values of the two metals so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of a dollar, whether of silver, gold or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and workingmen, demand that every dollar—paper or coin—issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver as money throughout the world. THE SILVER PLANK.

The free and honest popular ballot, just and equal representation of all people, as well as their just and equal protection under the laws, are the foundation of our republican institutions, and the party will never relax its efforts until the integrity of the ballot and purity of elections shall be fully guaranteed and protected in every State.

enlarging of this natural water course to to 20% feet across by about 11 feet deep. The cierk was instructed to advertise for bids for furnishing the material and constructing this main ditch. The work is to be constructed in three sections, each of about one-third the leagth, and the bids are to be made separate for each section. In the matter of carrying apart of the water through another part of the city, west of Cajon street, no action was taken. A map of the plans so far completed was ordered filed in the County Recorder's office.

HIGH SCHOOL BONDS.

Because of the defeat of the High school bonds the question of buying the Alverson property adjoining the present High school property, and giving a frontage on Church street, was not decided at the citizen's meeting on Wednesday. The defeat of the bonds is due to the location being unsatisfactory to t. ny. A committee consisting of E. r. Judson, E. W. Wilmot, S. C. Haven, I. N. Hoag and H. H. Sinclair was appointed to ascer in whether the purchase of the proposed property would be satisfactory to the residents of Lagonia, and if so whether it, odd not be desirable to submit the bond question to another special election. The proposition is to vote bonds for $12,000 to cr ct one wing of a $60,000 High school building. Another meeting will be held in two weeks.

The vote of 267 polled at the school elec-tion Tuesday is larger by eighteen than the total vote of the entire precinct of Ontario -including Ontario and San Antonio dis-tricts—at the State election of 1890. At the coming November election Ontario will have a vote of at least 350, an increase of have a vote of at least 350, an increase of 40 per cent. In two years. No more exciting time has ever been seen here than Tuesday forenoon, when 267 votes were polled in four hours. It means some lively rustling. Mr. Holbrook is a shrewd politician, and he dug up a large vote down in the sage brush and hay fields toward Chino. It was generally supposed that he was elected and the count progressed amid great excitement. First one candidate and then another was ahead, and not till the last vote was counted was Mrs. Kendall's election assured. She is a cultured lady of large experience in school matters and will make an efficient trustee. Ontario is the first place of any size in matters and will make an efficient trustee. Ontario is the first place of any size in Southern California to elect a lady trustee. There is one peculiar feature to the business. Prof. Luckey, principal of the schools, wrote a letter indorsing Mr. Holbrook and threatening to resign if he were not elected. This was not well received by the voters generally, and the question wow is, will he go or back down and try and nold his place?

T. J. Gilmore, the veteran publisher of the St. Louis Magazine, the oldest-established magazine in the West, together with his wife, is spending a few weeks in Santa Ana, and since arriving here Mr. Gilmore has been a constant reader of The Times. Yesterday he called at The Times branch office and left the following communication, saying that the people of Southern California should be proud of their leading paper: that in no nart of the United States

California should be proud of their leading paper; that in no part of the United States had he known of so good a paper being published in a locality having many times the population of Los Angeles and Southern California:
"SANTA ANA (Cal.,) June 5, 1892.—[To the Editor of The Times.] I am spending a few months' vacation in Southern California, and for the present am located here. I have been reading The Times daily since my arrival a fortnight ago. Being used to nia, and for the present am located here. I have been reading THE TIMES dally since my arrival a fortnight ago. Being used to reading the great dailies of the Bast in varied number, I feel that I, in my humble way, know a good newspaper when I see it, and I wish to say that The Los Angeles. Times, especially of today (Sunday,) is a grand paper. The full telegraphic reports from Minneapolis and other points certainly show a generosity in the publishers as well as great sagacity on the part of your editorial manager, and such a paper as The Times is seldom found in cities ten times the size of Los Angeles. Before leaving St. Louis Mr. Gilmore ordered the St. Louis Globe-Democrat sent to his address here, thinking that he would get a better report of the political convenventions at Minneapolis, and Chicago, but said he to The Times reporter, "the paper you represent gives such complete telegraphic reports that the Globe seems old when I get it."

What Should be Done in Case of Fire—Elec-tric Light Machinery.

There has been considerable complaint made about the residents of the outer por-tions of the city not turning off their supmade about the residents of the outer portions of the city not turning off their supply of water when there is an alarm of fire. There is on the principal business streets a special fire pipe, but in the resident portion there is none. It is generally supposed that there is an ordinance requiring all parties to turn off their supply, but such is not the case. In the recent fire of A. G. Lorbeer one of the hose companies could get no water of any consequence for several minutes, and of course the fire got a much stronger headway, It is a matter of great importance to the city's best interests, and it is to be hoped the property owners will bear this in mind in the future. The machinery for the electric light company is expected in today. This makes matters nearly ready for the turning on of the big bright lights from way up in the San Antonio Cañon. The pipe is nearly completed and is laid alongside the ditch ready to be riveted together. The pipe is actually as strong as the very best boilers and is riveted with red-hot rivets. Now let's see a plentiful supply of the lights scattered around all over the city.

The doctor and other Western members of the association strove hard to have Los Angeles selected as the meeting place for the next convention, but it was voted to hold it at Omaha.

THEY MADE A MISTAKE.

A Drummer Who Had Prepared for Emer

We were just leaving Bedford for Altoona, Pa., when a drummer entered the car with two valises, followed by a boy with two more. He sat down in one seat, turned the back of another seat and piled his valises on it and then tacked up on the window frame a printed card reading:

THIS IS MY BUSY DAY. SEE ME TOMORROW.

He did all this in a business-like man ner, without even looking around him, and then sat down and pulled out a notebook and began to figure. As the train started there were seven passengers who had no seats. In a few min utes something was said about the "rail-road hog." In a few more there were observations derogatory to the char-acter of the two-seated man. We had not gone over ten miles when the man who had the largest half of a seat got so mad at seeing seven people have to stand up that he blurted out: "If I hadn't a seat I'd pitch that chap's valises out of the window and take one."

The remark was applauded, and a minute later one of the stand-ups advanced to the drummer and said:
"Sir, I want part of this seat."
The drummer pointed to the sign of his busy day and kept on figuring.
"Do you hear me?"
He pointed again.
"Pull him out!" shouted three or four voices.

The stand-up passenger seized the drummer by the collar and pulled him out of the seat and sat down amid applause.

Standing in the aisle the man of valises made some figures on a piece of paper and handed it to the other. "What is it?"

"Damages, sir! I want $100 damages or I'll sue for $5000."
"But you have no right to two whole seats."

"Beg pardon, sir, but here are four tickets to Altoona! I represent four passengers and am entitled to two whole seats. Damages sir $100 damages for assault and battery and injury to my feelings."

The conductor came along just then and supported the rights of the drummer, and after considerable "dickering" the stand-up man forked over $40 in cash and was given a receipt in full. The drummer pocketed the bills, sat down with a bow to the passengers and turned his sign over. It then read.

People's Store!

June 10, 1892.

You can come into our stores today and buy Dress Goods and Wash Fabrics at about 33½ per cent. less than New York cost. The best part of our season is gone and we haven't sold any summer goods. Less than a month remains to dispose of our stock. The past few days brought us carloads and express loads of new goods, which are being sacrificed before shown. Dress Goods which are being sacrificed before shown. Dress Goods that were $1.00 down to 65c; Cotton Goods that were 40c down to 25c; from 25c down to 15c.

It is not conceit on our part to say that we have as handsome a line of Dress Goods as is shown in this town, as good in quality and if not cheaper than you can buy anywhere else, we will cheerfully refund the money. We have suffered a good deal from the old cry of "trash" at the hands of other merchants. We hear it daily, but the converts to our cause of "the best goods at the lowest pribes" are growing hourly. We have made up our minds to do the finest Dress Goods trade in this town so far as cash customers are concerned. We can undersell any concern that gives credit even if we pay the same price for goods. If you have not been in and are not accustomed to dealing with us, please come in and give us a look over, and if we do not satisfylyou that we can beat any price quoted in this town in our lines, we do not expect you to pay cash where you can have it charged.

The values we offer are unprecedented in our history. Whatever we may have done in the past we have never equaled in quality or reduction in price the goods we are offering this day. They are better in quality, choicer in style and design and lower in price.

The above are two fac similes of many REWARDS OF MERIT or DIPLOMAS of PROFESSIONAL SKILL which have from time to time been awarded to the CELEBRATED CHINESE PHYSICIAN, Dit. WONG, for his upperfor medicial abilities and curative powers.

It has long been customary among the Chinese people when one becomes sick and when repeated attempts to cure him have failed, and he is perhaps given up to die, if, after having been taken to an eminent physician, he be cured of his disease—the cured, too in addition to the regular fee-for professional services rendered, makes the physician a present as a token of gratitude for his restoration to health and the prolongation of his life. This present consists usually of a broad plank, presenting much the appearance of a sign-board, filled with characters entirely meaningless to the average English scholar, but full of meaning to the successful physician and his friends. It is a motto which nighly compliments the physician for his great skill in effecting a cure of the disease which once afflicted the donor.

The Commissioners Discuss Disreputable Saloons.

The Serious Charges Preferred b Humane Officer Wright.

One of the Saloon-keepers Appears Before the Board

War Declared on the "Family Entre -All Signs of This Character Ordered Removed-Regulating the Hack-

The Police Commissioners met in adjourned session yesterday afternoon at 8 o'clock, with Mayor Hazard presiding, and Commissioners Shatto, Lewis and Mackey present. A petition was received from the members of the police force asking that the time for their vacation be extended to commence July 5, and the same was

John F. Richter presented a petition for the transfer of the saloon license for Nos. 141-143 South Los Angeles street, now in the name of F. C. Schue dig. Referred to the chief.

Humane Officer Wright then appeared before the board in the matter of the disreputable saloons that have selling liquor to children and allowing selling liquor to children and allowing frequent the same. Mr. young girls to frequent the same. Mr. Wright preferred the following written

Wright preferred the following written charges:

To the Honorable Board of Police Commissioners—GENTLEMEN: I herewith prefer the following charges against H. Richmond, proprietor of the saloon on the northeast corner of Seventh and San Pedro streets, corner of Seventh and San Pedro streets, namely: The said-proprietor on or about the 10th day of May, 1892, permitted the following minors, Dolph Green, Edna Percival and May McCroy, to visit his saloon, and did then and there furnish said minors with intoxicating liquors.

M. V. Wright,
Humane Officer.

Mr. Wright explained that he had some doubts about being able to make out a case against the place in view of recent developments. Green, he said, had gone East, the Percival girl was in the Whittier Reform School, while the McCroy girl would not be present, unless the commissioners could compel her to attend. Mr. Wright said he made the charges on the confessions of the girls themselves, and that he personally knew nothing about the case.

Commissioner Lewis asked Mr. Wright if this was his strongest case, when the officer said that it is, unless the New Orleans House, which is notorious, is a stronger one. There was some general talk about proceeding with the case, when it was stated that Richmond was in attendance to answer the charges. He was accordingly brought in, and, in answer to questions, specially denied any knowledge of the girls mentioned going to or being at his house. He stated that he was not at the saloon during the afternoon, his barkeeper, Kearney, being in charge during those hours. He had looked up the man named Green, and from his appearance he should judge that he is old enough to be a voter. Richmond instanced one or two cases when girls came to his There was some general talk about or two cases when girls came to his place, but that they were accompanied by their parents. Women, however, frequently drove up to his saloon, and had drinks, sometimes in carriages and sometimes on horseback. He only had two small card-rooms in the rear of his place. Richmond denied positively that he ever knowingly sold liquors to

Humane Officer Wright stated to Richmond that one of the girls had stated that she had been ruined at the place, and that she further said that liquor had been furnished her. Richmond did not think that this was possible, as he had instructed his barpossible, as the fact instituted in soft-keeper not to allow girls about the place. Richmond further stated that the hackman, Rasmus, had tried to bring girls to his place, but he had refused to allow him to do so.

The law was then looked up, and it was ascertained that the age under which it is unlawful to supply minors with liquor had been raised by the Leg-islature from 16 to 18 years, and the city Tax Collector was instructed to change the notification on the back of saloon licenses from 16 to 18 years.

The matter of disreputable hack-drivers then came up, and it developed that the respectable hack-drivers of the city had intended to ask the board to revoke the hack license of Rasmus, but as he had left the city nothing had been as he had left the city nothing had been as he had left the city nothing had been done. It was also suggested that it would be a good thing to have hack licenses placed under the control of the Police Commissioners.

It was also suggested that special no-

It was also suggested that special notice of the amended law be sent to all saloon-keepers, and that in future notices be posted on the licenses in such a manner that it can be seen.

Commissioner Shatto thought it would be a good thing if the commissioners would make a rule that in case a license was revoked, no other license will be issued for the place. This would have a tendency to brace the property owners, and they would be very careful about the class of tenants they had.

Commissioner Lewis said this plan had been tried in some towns in En had been tried in some towns in En-gland, and it had been found to act well. Mayor Hazard thought this would work a hardship in many cases, and would cause a great deal of trouble.

The matter of "family entrances" to saloons was called up, and Mr. Wright asked if the commissioners had the power to close them, as they were the moral curse of the town.

The Mayor replied that the power of the commission in the matter of saloon is absolute, as they can revoke the heartily in favor of closing "family en-trances," and is ready to cooperate with the board to that end, whereupon Commissioner Shatto promptly moved that all "family entrances" be closed

This motion caused quite a sensation, and Mayor Hazard and Commissioner Mackey, in ordinary parlance, began to "hedge." The Mayor thought this was too sweeping; he favored the removal of the signs over these entrances, but did not think the commissioners had the right to close the entrances.

There was some debate, after which a vote, was taken on Commissioner.

vote was taken on Commissioner Shatto's motion and it was defeated by a vote of 2 to 2, Commissioners Shatto and Lewis voting for the motion, and the Mayor and Commissioner Mackey

Shatto voting in favor of it, as being better than nothing, and a step in the right direction.

Commissioner Shatto then exploded another bombshell by moving that all screens be removed from the front entrances to saloons, in order that a full view may be had of the interiors of the Mayor Hazard and Commissioner Mackey at once jumped on the motion, which, however, was seconded by Commissioner-Lewis.

There was the usual debate, Commissioner Shatto favoring his motion, but suggested that it be withdrawn until the next meeting, as he saw he could

A vote was finally taken, the result being 2 to 2, the Mayor and Commissioner Mackey voting against it, and Commissioners Shatto and Lewis in

The meeting then adjourned.

THE MARTIN CASE.

There is no question but that the case of Officer Martin has caused more feeling among the Commissioners than any-thing that has been before them for some time past. The public proceed-ings Wednesday afternoon were rather interesting, but that was nothing to the interesting, but that was nothing to the meeting in the Mayor's private office. Mayor Hazard championed the cause of the officer and was supported by Commissioners Snyder and Mackey, the Democratic members. Commissioner Lewis, on the other hand, took the ground that Martin had signally failed to do his duty in the matter of the postoffice attempted burglary, and that he should be removed from the force forthwith. When the Commissioners retired to the private office Mr. Mackey moved that the charges against the officer be to the private office Mr. Mackey moved that the charges against the officer be dismissed. Mr. Lewis moved as a substitute that the officer be dismissed from the force. This motion failed to receive a second, and then Commissioner Shatto moved to suspend him for six months, which called out a decidedly lively debate. Seeing that this motion would be defeated an effort was made to have the officer suspended for three months, and the charges were finally dismissed by a vote of 3 to 2, the Mayor and Commissioners Mackey and Snyder voting in the affirmative, and Commissioners Lewis and Shatto in the negative.

and Commissioners Lewis and Shatto in the negative.
Mayor Hazard and Commissioner Lewis indulged in several warm passages, Mr. Lewis insisting that it was an outrage to keep Martin on the force and that the Mayor's personal feelings had considerable to do with the result, while Mr. Hazard admitted that although Martin is a friend of his, the evidence offered was not sufficient to sustain the offered was not sufficient to sustain the

CHANCE FOR A FORTUNE.

A Matter of Interest to the Viticulturists

The Southern California World's Fair association is just in receipt of the fol lowing letter from the Viticulture De partment of this State:

Here is a chance for some one to make a fortune during the fair. Due notice will be given for bids.

The California World's Fair Commission

The California World's Fair Commission has received concessions from the directory of the Columbian Exposition that are of great value to the State of California in general, and to the viticulturists and horticulturists in particular. They are as follower.

ticulturists in particular. They are as follows:

First—The plan of the California building has been accepted by the construction department, who praise it very highly.

Second—California is allowed her cafe or restaurant for the sale of wines, fruit, vegetables and other products, with a first-class lunch. This privilege will be let to some one—the best that can be found.

Third—Orders can be received by exhibitors in the California building, to be delivered at anytime, to parties or places outside the Exposition grounds.

Fourth—The Transcontinental Tramic Association has granted half rate each way, or, in other words, a rate of 50 cents per 100 pounds to Chicago, and the same rate on what is to be returned.

These concessions are invaluable to the viticultural interests of California, and more than it was believed could be obtained.

Now is the time to make your application.

Now is the time to make your application

—do it at once—as such must be in before June 20, so that they can reach Chicago before July 1, 1892.

An important weeting of interest to viticulturists will be held in San Francisco Tuesday June 14, 1892, All are invited.

St. Andrew's, a mission of St. Paul's

Episco pal Church, has for some time past been holding Sunday-school in West End Hall, on Temple street, near Belmont avenue. The rector of St. Paul's, Rev. George F. Bugbee, has de-cided to add to the work, and will, hereafter, on the second Sunday in each month, commencing with next Sunday, June 12, hold evening service in the hall at 3 p.m. Sunday-school will follow at the close of the service. With the exception of the second Sunday in each month the Sunday-school will be held, as heretofore, at 3 o'clock every Sunday afternoon. The portion of the city where this mission is located is in St. Panl's parish, but on account of the long distance to the church many of the parishioners are unable to attend serhereafter, on the second Sunday in each against it.

Mayor Hazard then moved that all signs to "ladies' entrances" or "family entrances" over saloon doors be removed, which motion prevailed by a unanimous vote, Messrs. Lewis and vice near at home.

THE COURTS.

A Verdict Reached in the Lankershim Ranch Case.

Decided for the Plaintiffs on the Ground of Adverse Possession.

Rather Important Decision Handed Down by Judge Clark.

Peculiar Case on Trial Before Judge McKinley-The Temple Street Grade Trial Slowly Progressing-Gen-

The jury in the case of the Los Angeles Farming and Milling Company vs. W. H. Hoff, Jr., et al., an action to en join defendants from squatting on the Lankershim ranch in the San Fernando Valley, returned into court at 2:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after hav-ing been out for nineteen hours, with a verdict for the plaintiff in the following "We, the jury in the above entitled action, find for the plaintiff on the grounds of adverse possession, according to the Reynolds survey.

"Josian Wright, Foreman."

At the request of the defendant the jury was polled, when it was learned that ten of the twelve had agreed, but as it requires only a two-thirds vote in a civil case to carry a verdict, the defense obtained little consolation from the knowledge thus gained.

A stay of execution was granted for twenty days.

NOT COMMUNITY PROPERTY.

Judge Clark rendered his decision yesterday in the case of Mrs. Susan A. Robinson vs. William Mann, administrator of the estate of Mary L. Mann, deceased, ordering findings and decree in favor of the defendant therein.

This is a suit to quiet title to an undi-vided interest in lots 16 and 17, block R, of the Rivera and Vignolo tract in this city. In April, 1875, Jesse Robinson, a son of the plaintiff, was by an order of the Circuit Court of Vigo county, Ind., adopted by W. H. Todd, and thereafter Todd and his family, which consisted of his wife and adopted son removed to this State. son, removed to this State

On April 26, 1882, the above described premises were conveyed by the then owners to Mrs. Todd by a bargain and sale deed, which contained no and sale deed, which contained no words of separate estate. Todd died intestate in 1883, and no administration was ever had upon his estate, and in September 1888, the adopted son, Jesse Robinson Todd, died at the age of 16 years. Mrs. Todd remarried in December 1884, and in July 1885 died intestate, letters of administration being issued to her husband, the defendant.

Plaintiff's position is that the property involved was community property of Mary L. and W. H. Todd; that upon the death of the latter an undivided one-halt vested in the adopted son, and that she as mother and heir of the boy has succeeded thereto, but the Court finds that the property was the separate property of Mary L. Todd and not community property.

A PECULIAR CASE.

The case of Edward Hatton vs. F. L. Lee et al., an action to recover $1000, came up for trial before Judge McKinley in Department Six, having been transferred from Department Five, the plaintiff being represented by J. T. Houx, Esq., and the defendants by Messrs. Wells, Monroe and Lee.

The plaintiff alleged that in December, 1889, the defendants, who represented themselves to be the agents of Mrs. Maria J. Kiefer, the owner of eight acres of land in the southwest quarter of section 13, township 1 south, range 14 west, stated that she was desirous of borrowing $1000 on it and would give a mortgage as security for the loan. Acting upon their representations he accepted a note for $1000 purporting to be signed by Mrs. Kiefer on January to be signed by Mrs. Kiefer, on January 2. 1890, and made out two checks or the Southern California National Bank, one for $40, payable to the Lees, and the other for $960, payable to the order of Maria J. Kiefer, which he dewere cashed, and he subsequently learned that Mrs. Kiefer's signature was a forgery and that the defendants were not authorized to act as her agents, wherefore he seeks to recover from them the $1000, which he is out.

The defendant, on the other hand, claims that in 1889 they were real estate agents, and that plaintiff was introduced to them in a business way by the Southern California National Bank, which represented that he was desirous of loaning money on land. After they had made several loans for him, to their mutual advantage, a man named Jen-kins, who claimed to be the agent of Mrs. Maria J. Kiefer, applied to them in December for a loan of $1000. They told Hutton of it, but advised him to look at the land and see for himself whether or not the security offered was good, as they had little confidence in Jenkins. After he had looked at the land Hutton returned and said that everything was satisfactory, and after everything was satisfactory, and after receiving the note and mortgage from Jenkins, he gave the latter a check for $960 and handed defendants one for $40 for their commission. They fur-ther showed that there was a suit still pending in the Superior Court by which Hutton was endeavoring to recover the same money from A. C. Holmes, a no-tary public, and his bondsmen, on the ground that he had falsely certified that ground that he had falsely certified that the person who signed the mortgage and acknowledged it before him was known to him to be the genuine Maria

The trial of the case was not con-cluded, however, owing to the absence of Jenkins, and the matter was contin-ued until Monday next, TO BE REVIEWED.

Judge Shaw issued an alternanive writ of review directed to Justice Stanton yesterday morning, returnable on Monday next, in response to the peti-tion of Christian Jensen, requiring him to produce the record of the case of Niles Larsen vs. Christian Jensen for review and modifiation.

Niles Larsen vs. Christian Jensen for review and modifiation.

In his petition Jensen alleges that on April 27 last Larsen sued him for $299 damages alleged to have been sustained by reason of the fraudulent sale of two mares by Jensen. Although he answered within the required time, plaintiff and his attorneys, Messrs. Teel & Krimminger, without the knowledge of Jersen and his counsel, went into court and applied for and obtained judgment against him on May 17, and an execution was issued on May 24. This was the first intimation he had received of the judgment, and on June 7 his attorneys went before Justice Stanton and moved him to set aside said judgment, but he refused to do so, In order, therefore, to prevent his property from being sold to satisfy the judgment, Jensen takes this step.

CONVICTED OF ASSAULT.

Alfred Townsend appeared before Justice Stanton for trial upon the charge of assault, preferred against him by C. L. Cooper, and upon his conviction was fined in the sum of $8.50.

From the testimony taken it was gathered that in March last Townsend loaned a man named Charles Powers $5, and that the latter forgot to repay it. On Friday last Townsend called, upon Powers, who works at Squires' coal yard on the corner of Alameda and Jackson streets, and demanded the money. Powers apologized for not being able to comply with the request, and promised to pay it at the earliest ing able to comply with the request, and promised to pay it at the earliest opportunity. This was not satisfactory to Townsend, however, and taking of his coat, announced his intention of "taking it out of Powers' hide." The latter grabbed an axe and prepared to defend himself, and at this juncture Squires arrived. Seeing that his employé was armed, Squires ordered him to drop the axe, and told Townsend to leave the yard, as he did not want any fuss on his premises. Townsend refused to go, and picked up a rock, but finally went away saying that next time he came he would be prepared. On the following day he returned with a shotgun and proceeded to look for Powers, who hid in a shed, but failing to find him he made things so unpleasage. find him he made things so unpleasant that Squires had him arrested.

TEMPLE STREET GRADE CASE. The trial of the "Temple street The trial of the "Temple street grade" case was resumed before Judge Shaw and a jury in Department Five, yesterday, and considerable headway made, as during the day's session testimony was taken on behalf of seven of the defendants. They were Mrs. Annie Williams, who claims $2500 damager for her lot on Hope and Temple streets A. and Julia James, who own three lots on Pearl street, which they claim will be damaged to the extent of $10,000 W. D. Smith, who asks for $20,000 W. D. Smith, who asks for $20,000 damages for six lots on Bunker Hill and damages for six lots on Bunker Hill and Temple streets; Elizabeth F. Dotter, who demands $10,000 for her two lots; Fred Woodbury, who claims $15,000 damages for a 54-foot lot on Temple street; I. C. Meyer. $5000 for two lots; and P. Beaudry, $1250 for a lot 50x150 feet on Temple street.

The case will be resumed today.

THE TITLE QUIETED. In Department Three, yesterday morning, the case of Julia Mooney et al. vs. Mary A. Mooney, an action to declare that certain property be held in trust by defendant for plaintiffs, came up for hearing before Judge Wade. The plaintiffs were not present, they having dismissed the action, but the Court vacated the order of dismissal and tried the case upon the claim of the defend-ant for affirmative relief, the result being that after hearing the evidence a decree quieting defendant's title was ordered.

In Department Two yesterday morning Judge Clark tried the case of Mrs. Mary E. Haynes vs. Mrs. Mary A. Denmary E. Haynes vs. Mrs. Mary A. Den-nison et al., an action to foreclose a mortgage, and ordered judgment for plaintiff therein in the sum of $5500. A stay of execution was, however, granted for three months.

granted for three months.

The Standing Committee on Examination having reported favorably thereon, the application of Earle H. Rogers, for admission to practice as an attorney and counsellor-at-law was granted by Judge Clark yesterday morning.

Receiver Crank, of the Pacific Railway Company, filed an application in De-

Company, filed an application in Department Three for leave to issue receiver's certificates, which matter was set for hearing by Judge Wade on Monday next. In Department Four yesterday morning Judge Van Dyke, pursuant to stipulation therein, ordered that the case of Mary A. Anderson vs. J. T. Moore et al. be dismissed without prejudice, the defendants waiving all claim for damages for wrongfully suing out an injunction against them.

Jesse Monte, a Portuguese, was duly admitted to citizenskip of the United States by Judge Van Dyke yesterday, upon producing the necessary proofs of residence here, and taking the requisite oaths of renunciation and allegiance; and Judge Shaw performed a like ser-vice for Christian Jensen, a German.

NO BAD FAITH.

A Considerate Opinion of Blaine and His Course

By the Veteran Journalist, Murat Halstead.

A Man Softened in His Disposition, but Not Failing Intellectually.

Great Statesman Has Faced and How Heroically He Has Eaced Them

[Halstead's Letter.] It is not at all clear to us that it is ise and well to nominate Mr. Blaine for the Presidency. If he has said that he is himself of that opinion, it is not in authentic form before the public. His indement on that subject we shall have to trust, and we are not alarmed about it. If Blaine be Blaine, he would be the most popular candidate. If he should be nominated, there are two lines of assault upon which the whole force of the enemy will be thrown. One is the ugly statement that is going the rounds, attributed to Mr. Waterson, and that is, in all probability, the language of some other man. It is that Blaine is not himsalf. The other is the charge that he cannot be a candidate in good faiththat it would be bad faith toward the President for him to consent to run.

As to Mr. Blaine's health of body and mind, the writer of these lines on Friday last had an extended conversation with Mr. Blaine, who did the talking save when replies were made to very interesting questions. It may not be out of order to say that he referred with grim humor to the stories of his mental decay that have been cruelly circulated, and his language on that subject would amuse the public very much if it might be reported. The representation that he is dying at the top is one difficult to deal with. It is not is one difficult to deal with. It is not true. If he does not show so often as formerly that wonderful memory of everything he ever heard of anybody, put the names to all faces at a grance, add personal histories to the names, and deal in the display of marvelous re-sources of mental force, there is no ocsources of mental force, there is no occasion for either surprise or alarm. There are changes in Mr. Blaine. He yet bears marks of his illness of last summer, but he has recently made a better recovery than the average strong man does from the grip. He has had discouragements about his condition, for he has a discouragement and a second to the condition of the second condition. has delicate organization, and is acutely aware of all that happens. The intensity with which he enjoys music; the refreshment he has in rest; the refinement that has made him al the refinement that has made him always refuse tobacco in any form; the fact that strong drink is repulsive to him and taken only as medicine, and rarely—are associated with a temperment that is singularly sensitive. He has changed in growing command of himself; in gentleness of manner; in findlines; in forgiveness of carmies. himberly in gentieness of manner; in kindliness; in forgiveness of enemies; in tender estimation of those near him. The changes are all becoming his age, his fame and his dignity. The mellow-ing of his character is not due to weakness, but it is an expression of history and philosophy, and this is not the result of his illness, but the logic of his life. the ripeness of his genius. No man has been so pursued with hateful prejudice, falsehoods, animosities. prejudice, falsehoods, animosities. It is no wonder he shrinks from the malignant fire that he is aware will be poured upon him if he approaches the Presidency, and yet he can endere and rise in courage and force to occasions. Love is stronger than hate, and he knows it. He has not been obtrusive in the Harrison administration. In one in the Harrison administration. In one matter he struck out with decisive matter he struck out with decisive energy, and demanded that reciprocity should be added to protection.

He never was more sagacious; and it was the logic of his putting protection to the front in 1888. He did not want to run for the Presidency. The one thing that more than another irritates and alarms him is that his party should understand him to be a claimant for the great office. He wrote claimant for the great office. He wrote his letter of February 6 with the deepest sincerity, and he had been expostulated with by friends whose devotion he keenly appreciated. He meant every word of the letter. He had millions of friends who felt that it was a blow. If his action affected any one unfavorably, it was himself. Why should he have taken himself out of the field just as the elections of delegates were beginning? That February letter was not a bid for the Presidency, was it? It was net a sly underhand scheme to get there was it? No one has been quite will enough to make such a charge as that enough to make such a charge as that. There is an accusation, however, that approaches it in foolishness, and it is that Mr. Blaine wrote the letter as an act of personal humility that he might hold on to his office a little longer, which, it is supposed, he could not do with propriety and allow himself to be talked about for the Presidency. about for the Presidency. The absurd-ity of this is shocking. Has any Repubity of this is shocking. Has any Republican felt that it would help the party for Mr. Blaine to leave the cabinet? Does any one suppose that he has a hankering for the office? There has been about this a degree of misjudgment that may be mischicated. ment that may be mischievous. There were younger men who thought whe his reciprocity idea was at first pre-sented that he had become old and feeble and was not the man he had been; that his time was over; the water turned away forever from his wheel; that he was a back number, and he was heard with scant attention. This aroused him, and he forced the rec-

y policy upon Congress; upon a at first captious, conceited and unwilling: and members stood back asking what reciprocity meant, until they saw the irresistible popular impulse imparted to the proposition, and that shone forth one of the rarest, most brilliant and splendid and useful examples of constructive statesman-those who were running Mr. Blaine for those who were running Mr. Blaine for the Presidency are the men: none others have a call to come into court. There is but one candidate for the Presidency in the field who would not have been in it if it had not been for that February letter—Gen. Alger—and he does not regard himself ruined by the fact that Mr. Blaine has written only one letter. There is absolutely no impropriety in Mr. Blaine consenting, not withstanding his letter, to accept the nomination. There is one thing he cannot afford to do, and that is to allow cannot afford to do, and that is to allow the convention to nominate him and then to decline. If he means declination, he should say so before the convention proceeds to ballot. As to advising him what to do—he is the only man who knows the whole case, and he must review it judicially and decide. In the meantime, blessed are the peacemakers, and they are hardy a hard time of it. and they are having a nard time of it.

Michigan for Blaine,

[Minneapolis Correspondence Cincinnati Times Star.] That Gen. Alger is at heart for Blaine and that his own State delegation are now for Blaine for the Presidency and Alger for the Vice-Presidency, no one any longer doubts. If there had been any skepticism upon this point, it was removed tonight by the distribution of a circular from the Michigan headwarters bearing the programs of quarters, bearing the portraits of Blaine and Alger, and reading as fol-lows: "Under the oaks at Jackson." "Frémont and Dayton, 1856. Blaine and Alger. Minneapolis, 1892."

"The Republican party and the peo ple demand the nomination of Blaine. "Because he commands the confidence and admiration of our entire pop ulation in a greater degree than does any other living American today.

"Because the cardinal principles of the Republican party's policy of reciprocity," which he originated, and 'protection,' the unyielding champion of which he has been for more than a quarter of a century, would be best admin istered in his hands.

"Because he believes in the eterna separation and divorcement of church and schools.
"Because he can carry all the silver

States without a pledge or a doubt.

Because he can bring back to the Republican fold the hundreds of thousands of farmers who have been drift-ing from their moorings.

"Because a large number of thoughtful, conservative Democrats, who under stand and appreciate Mr. Blaine's great ideas as to reciprocity and protection, and who most earnestly commend and indorse his views as to the rights and duties of American citizenship, will cast their votes for him this year.

"Because a great majority of the Republican party believe that one term in the Presidential chair is honor enough for any man, and that this policy should be adherent to the presidential chair is the policy should be adherent to the presidential that the policy should be adherent to the policy should be adherent to the president be adhered to, except in cases of great emergency or National danger, which do not exist of this time. "Because Mr. Blaine most keenly realizes necessity for the enactment of legislation and judicious enforcement of laws that will secure the enfranchis ment of colored men of the South and their constitutional right, to cast one ballot at every election, and have that ballot honestly counted."

On the reverse side of this circular is printed in full the famous speech of Col. Robert G. Ingersoll in nominating lar was submitted to Gen. Alger last night before he left Detroit," said Col. Gavotte, "and it met his approval. That is all I can say as to Gen. Alger's position—I think it is sufficient."

A letter from L. C. McIntosh, tele-graph operater at Volcano Springs, of date June 6, states that the "King of Tramps" arrived at that place on that date and left for Los Angeles the same afternoon, where he expected to arrive about Sunday. The fellow put in an appearance Saturday morning at Volcano trundling a wheelborrow on the railroad ties, and was entertained by the agent. After being refreshed the "King" made the following statement:

I have the honor of being called the King of Tramps and am proud of it. I started from Cincinnati, O., with 4 cents and this from Cincinnati, 0., with 4 cents and this wheelbarrow, and after paying 3 cents to cross the bridge. ### PROFIT IN POTATOES.

Product Subject to Great Fluctuations.

Money to Be Made by Studying the Market.

When and What Varieties to Plant and How to Ship.

The Eastern Market for Our Early Pot Floods This Year-Home Gr Seed to Be Avoided—Yields and Profits.

Two years ago-in 1890-there were imported to Los Angeles by the South-ern Pacific route—not including coast shipments—3,792,410 pounds of pota-toes, and exported by the same route 6,449,190 pounds. This curious condition of affairs, which so plainly indi cates the vagaries of the potato market in this section, does not prevail today to the same extent, but the product is still the subject of violent and frequent fluctuations, which those who desire to make money in growing "spuds" should study.

As far back as the 50s, potatoes were selling one year in California at a dollar a pound, and the next year were vainly seeking purchasers at 10 cents a sack. It has been either a feast or a famine ever since, and what growers have made one year they have generally dropped the next. This unprofitable condition of affairs might be avoided by an intelligent consideration of the peculiarities of the local market.

For a short period during the spring Southern California can ship early po-tatoes east at a good profit, as they ar-rive there before any others are in the market, and, consequently, command high prices. The season generally ex-tends from middle of May to end of July. After that potatoes begin to ar-rive in St. Louis and Chicago from Ar-kansas, Southern Missouri and Tennes-see and in New York and other Atlantic see, and in New York and other Atlantic Coast cities from Florida. Shipments of this character from Southern California have been made during the past four years. This year the land along the Mississippi, where early potatoes are grown, has been flooded, which will make the Eastern crop later than usual. At the same time the Southern California crop is late. Unfortunately the early potatoes shipped so far this sea-son encountered the short hot spell and vere "cooked" before they started, arriving in bad condition.

Last year was also a late season in Southern California, in consequence of which the later shipments came into competition with the early Eastern potatoes and the shippers failed to make money. money. As a result of this there was the usual reaction and this year will not see more than one-tenth as many potatoes harvested as were grown in 1891, the benefit accruing to those who had the courage to plant.

Last winter, during the cold spell, some potatoes planted in low lands were frosted, but most of them were replanted and will come in later.

It is the general impression that the notate husiness is largely in the head.

potato business is largely in the hands of Chinamen, but this is an error. Probably not more than 20 per cent. of the shipments from Los Angeles are made by Chinamen. The report that there is a combination among Chinese growers to ship direct to Eastern points is also baseless, being founded on the fact that one Chinese firm ships direct lact that one cunness that shape and to its representatives in Chicago and St. Louis.

Those wha desire to make money by the control of the c growing potatoes in Southern Cali-fornia should note the following points: Suitable land should be selected which is not subject to severe frosts.

Upon such land two crops a year may be grown in the following manner The first crop should be planted in Jan uary or February. It will come into market in the early part of May, in time for the first Eastern shipments. Care should be taken that the potatoes are thoroughly mature and the skin firm when shipped, or they will turn black and heat on the road. The second care may be planted in May or ond crop may be planted in May or June. This crop takes longer to ripen, the tubers growing more slowly during the hot weather. It will be ready in September or October for local consumption, when the Los Angeles market is bare and potatoes are being shipped in from the north.

Scarcely less important than the question of when to plant is that of what variety of seed to select. It is a curious fact, which has been fully proved, that local seed gives out after the first year, so that, in order to grow fine lawer potatoes the seed notatoes. fine, large potatoes the seed potatoes must be imported from the north. Possibly the home seed may produce a fair crop the second year, but after that it crop the second year, but after that it is sure to deteriorate and yield small tubers. Lack of knowledge of this fact has led to much loss of this fact has led to much loss on part of some growers. As a fine variety of large potatoes, grown from imported seed, will always command at least 15 cents a hundred pounds more in the market, it is evident that the small difference per acre in cost of seed should not be considered.

The varieties recommended in this section are, for the first planting, Early Rose and Burbanks, which command the highest prices in the Eastern markers, and for the second planting Burbanks, which are good keepers.

Commission men say that the Chinese who are in the potatoe business are, as a rule, more successful than their white a rule, more successful than their white neighbors, as they study the market closely and do not hisitate after they have made up their minds. They pay the market price for seed and get their crop in early, while many white men loose a profitable market by haggling and waiting for a drop in the price of seed.

The potato market just now is glutted, on account of the rejection at Chicago of forty carloads, which were shipped from Los Angeles in a too green condition, and encountering a warm spell, as mentioned above, became heated and spoiled. Plenty of potatoes may now be had at 45 cents a 100 pounds, in carload lots, but this condition of affairs is only temporary.

As to the yield and profits of potadition of affairs is only temporary.

As to the yield and profits of potatoes, a great variety of figures might be given, depending on soil, time of planting, variety, market and other circumstances. A good average yield is 125 sacks to the acre, averaging 110 pounds to the sack, or 18,750 pounds, which should bring an average-price of 78 cents a sack, or $107.25 per acre gross, for one crop, and $214.50 for two crops. The cost of production should not be over half of this, leaving the gross receipts for one crop as net should not be over half of this, leaving the gross receipts for one crop as net profit. Land in every way suitable for potatoes can be had, within twenty miles of Los Angeles, at from $100 to $150 an acre.

Some potatoes are being dug in this section by a machine, which costs $225 and saves the labor of seven men.

At Westminster, in the remarkable peat soil section, they have a variety of potato known as the "Early Blush," which yields from 225 ro 250 sacks to the acre. This variety has, however, a very deep eye, causing much waste in peeling, and is therefore not very popular with cousumers.

The thrifty housewife needs to exercise much caution in buying potatoes. There are many "tricks that are vain" in the trade. For a month or two past a couple of men have been peddling potatoes around town, offering them at a rate much below the market price. The samples they show are fine, but if a sack is purchased the contents, underneath the first layer, are found to be wilted and worthless, except to make starch or feed to the hogs. Another common trick of peddlers is to select the sacks of lightest weight in the stock of a commission merchant and then coolly mark them up from say 90 to 120 pounds, on which basis they can afford to sell them, apparently, at a less price than they paid for them.

There is no section which produces finer potatoes, or is more favorably situated in regard to markets, than Southern California. Potatoes from Northern California have to traverse two hot valleys on their way east, while ours only have to cross one. The trouble is that there is too little system in the business. A high price one year sets every one to planting spuds, and the next year there is, of course, a glut. Those who study the market and plant the right variety at the eright time will, barring accidents, always make money. Potatoes, which are now selling at 45

Less Hurrah and More Votes, [Globe-Democrat.]

The value of great personal popular-ity in a Presidential candidate is often overestimated. Clay and Frémont were men of this sort and they had hurrah campaigns when they ran for the Presidency, yet both were 'Beaten' by men who possessed not an atom of this quality. Clay, in 1844, was defeated by Polk, and Fremont fell behind Bubbanan defeated by chanan.

KENTUCKY PREPARING TO CELE-BRATE HER CENTENNIAL.

A Hundred Years Ago Next June She Achieved Statehood The Perils and Triumphs of the Days of Daniel

ENTUCKY, the fifteenth of the United States, was admitted to the Union in June Union a year be-fore and was the first state to be added to the orig-inal thirteen. In-have been one of Vermont would have been one overeign colonies during the Revol a sovereign colonies during the Revolu-nary war and the interim preceding the option of the constitution had it not sadption of the constitution had it not been for the jealousy of New York on one side of the Green mountain settlements and New Hampshire on the other. As it was, she did her full share during the war for independence, and had she received the justice due to her Kentucky would have had the honor of being the first of the new states.

Indeed it might be said that she would have had this honor anyhow, regardless of Vermont, if justice had been done. She was entitled to admission three years before the beginning of her statehood, and the delay by congress caused many hardships on what was then the far western frontier, and there was danger, too, that these pioneer communities, spurned by their own people, might cast their fortunes with Spain. In 1786 the Virginia legislature had passed at the request of a Kentucky delegation a bill of separation, with the proviso that Kentucky should not be independent until she had been admitted into the Union by the federal congress. into the Union by the federal congress.

The six years of waiting were full of dangers. Virginia was far away, and a journey across the mountains was necessary before any arrangements could be made for the defense by constituted authorities of the western extitueents are incited to of the western settlements against the Indians, who were constantly making little forays and from whom was momentarily expected a systematic attack in force. Under these circumstances it was most desirable that Kentucky should be able to defend herself in some proper way. There was so much dissatisfaction born of this was so much dissatisfaction born of this delay that it is not surprising that General Wilkinson, the man who later was mixed up in Aaron Burr's venture, should have almost persuaded the Kentuckians to become Spanish subjects. At that time Spain below the 31st degree of latitude controlled both banks of the Mississippi, and hence the navigation of the great river. the doth canks of the Mississippi, and hence the navigation of the great river. The Kentuckians, for whom this was the only outlet to the sea, maintained that the river should be free to the Gulf of Mexico. That they should not have this right made them feel, in addition to the slowness of congress in admitting them to statehood, that the federal government had some that the federal government had some grudge against them.

At that time congress sat in New York, which was a farcry from Kentucky. When John Jay, secretary of state, offered to suspend for twenty-five years the right of the free navigation of the Mississippi in consideration of certain other consessions. the free navigation of the Mississippi in consideration of certain other concessions to American commerce, and which in no way interested the people of the Ohio valley, General Wilkinson brought word from New York that this was the proposition of congress. In the inflamed condition of the public mind there were three propositions discussed with great excitement. One was to join the Union. All were in favor of this, but the northern states opposed this proposition. The second was to separate from Virginia and form an independent state. Those who despaired of securing admission to the Union and who did not like the idea of being subjects of his most catholic majesty favored this project. The third was to make a commercial treaty with Spain which virtually united treaty with Spain which virtually united Kentucky with Spain which virtually united Kentucky with Spain's possessions to the south. This was Wilkinson's project, and as he was a bold and able man he had a great following. These impatient people in Kentucky felt that it was a renewal of 1776, with the federal government in the

Nothing came of these various entangle ments and most of them exhausted then. selves in talk, though Wilkinson did return from a visit to New Orleans, where he had made a trade treaty by which Kentucky commerce going down the river was very greatly favored. Finally, in February 1791, congress, passed a law admitting ary. 1791, congress passed a law admitting Kentucky to the Union from the 1st of June, 1792. At this time there were about June, 1792. At this time there were about 100,000 inhabitants, of whom probably 15,000 were negro slaves. Of the white people the very great majority were natives of Virginia. These settled in what is called the Blue Grass region, and in no new state has there ever been a more he geneous population.

Professor Shaler, in speaking of the people who flocked from Virginia to the wilderness while the Old Dominion was engaged in a life and death struggle, says that there is no similar spectacle in history more curious than this. "We can only explain it by the intense land hunger that marks the Saxon people. The thirst for land, which we find so strongly developed in the Elizabethan English, seems to have been transmitted to Virginia in an intenser form. Knowing that free lands were to be won by giving life for them, the Virginia and North Carolina people were driven to desert their comfortable dwelling places in the colonies for the battle in the west. There is no other case where this land winning motive is so clearly seem as here. All our other western immigration has been feetered by the canonical and winning motive western immigraengaged in a life and death struggle, says

There is no other case where this land winning motive is so clearly seen as here. All our other western immigration has been fostered by the government. These people could look to no protection but what they gave themselves."

This kind of life developed a certain sort of man: a kind that was never known before or since in such numbers in any one country. The men had a certain dauntlessness, a habit of asserting the independence of all control except that of the written law. In speech they were frequently rude and exaggerated, but they did have a profound respect for courts of justice. This may have been due to the fact that courts were early established in these settlements, and to the further fact that without law land titles have small value. These pioneers have transmitted some of their characteriaties to their posterity perhaps, but it is likely that the reputation that Kentuenians enjoy at the present day for a general expansiveness is due more to tradition than to fact.

expansiveness is the more to tradition than to fact.

When the constitution was adopted the two most interesting features were those dealing with suffrage and slavery. The suffrage was given to all male citizens of proper age, and this probably was the first experiment of manhood suffrage in any modern state. The article concerning alavery shows a decided prejudice against the commerce in slaves. These were not to be brought into the state as merchandise, and none were to be brought that were imported since 1789. It also recommended the legislature to pass laws permitting the emancipation of slaves under the limitation that they should not become a charge on the county in which they re mitting the emancipation of slaves under the limitation that they should not become a charge on the county in which they resided. In choosing the first governor the people acted wisely in selecting General Isaac Shelby.

General Shelby, who was then forty-two, was a native of Maryland, but had been a distinguished soldier in the Revolutionary war, during which he was made commissary general of the Virginia troops by Governor Patrick Henry, and later a major by Governor Thomas Jefferson. He had suggested to General Horatio Gates the campaign which culminated in the victory of the Cowpens. And later he had been associated with John Sevier in hiseffort to make of east Tennessee the state of Franklin. After serving one term he retired to his farm, and only left there to assume command of the Kentucky troops during the war with Great Britain and her Indian allies in 1812.

Hiram Powers in a Madhouse.

LEBANON, O., May 10.—"Over the hill in the poorhouse," called for a softening sake the Warren County infirmary, there lives a man who in appearance reminds one of the "good gray poet," the late Walt Whitman. He is tall, with fine, regular features, whitening hair, which grows in long locks, but his eyes have a mysterious glitter, deep set as they are. He is hopelessly a lunatic, yet he bears a name famous in both Europe and America. He is Hiram Powers, and a nephew of the great sculptor whose "Greek Slave" has enchanted so many eyes by its beauty. The poor crazy creature who was named for Hiram Powers in a Madhouse enchanced so many eyes by its beauty. The poor crazy creature who was named for such a distinguished uncle has lived for many years in this infirmary, and looks forward to his fiftieth birthday with as much hope as any Second Adventist ever looked for the promised millennium. His favorite delusion is that on the day when he is fifty years old a wonderful chance. he is fifty years old a wonderful

He has much of the poetic nature in his composition, but it does not find expression in any attempt to portray it in marble or pictures. He is devoted to the teachings of Christ, and has read his testament over a thousand times. His mother, a very öld woman, yet lives near Springboro, where he was a school teacher in his youth. His distinguished uncle took quite a faucy to the boy of forty years ago, and had a thought of taking him to Europe for education. But the young man became erratic. He taught school, and one day lost his mind while in his schoolnoom. His sudden violence frightened the pupils, and he was sent to the Dayton asylum, raving in religious frenzy. He was sent back as incurable, and awaits the great day when he will be fifty years old. Then he expects to astonish the world with some marvelous doctrine which will make him more famous than his gifted uncle, the sculptor. mous than his gifted uncle, the sculptor.

**Ream insult to your intelligence, but some unserupulous dealers try it. For instance; you're suffering from some Skin, Scalp or Scroft-lous affection, or are feeling "undown" or "used-up," There's a topid liver, impure blood, and all that may come from it.

You've decided, wisely, that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the medicine to help you. You know that it's guaranteed to do so, as no other blood purifier is.

If it doesn't benefit or cure, you get your money back.

Can you ask more?

But what is best for you to take isn't always best for the dealer to sell. He offers something that's "just as good." Is it likely! If the makers of a medicine can't trust it, can you?

If they can trust it, then why not guarantee it, as the makers of the "Discovery" do!

The genuine sold only through authorized agents, at the uniform price of $1.00.

Beware of spurious imitations or dilutions, offered at less prices.

OFFICE OF THE TIMES

OFFICE OF THE TIMES,

LOS ANGELES JUNE 9, 1892.

A dispatch from Chicago reviewing the market for California dried fruits, says;

"There is a good demand and firm market for all lines named below except raisins, but in this description there is not so much doing. Prunes, apricots nectarines and peaches all rule firm. On account of apricots being scarce nectarines are doing better. Prices current: Raisins, London fancy clusters, 1.00@1.20; 3.crown, per box, 90@1.05; 3.crown fancy; per box, 90@1.05; 4.crown, 32.crown, per box, 90@1.05; 4.crown, 32.crown, 40.crown, 43.erown, 64.erown, 64.erow

Of the potato market the dispatch say Of the potato market the dispatch says: "The market is slow and unsatisfactory. The arrivals from California and the South exceed the demand. Consumers are not buying and holders are anxious to sell and offer to sell at reduced prices, but failed to call out inquiry. California northern, per sack, 1.50; southern, 1.00@1.25; bad order, 60@75; Louisana, bushel boxes, 75@80; small, 50."

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9 .- [Special to Thi Times.] The fruit market for summer varieties was quite active this morning, Strawberries arrive very sparingly and find ready sale at good prices. Cherries are in large receipt and lower in value, bu are in large receipt and lower in value, but surplus stocks of white cherries are taken by cannerfes. Gooseberries are scarce and firm. Small lots of blackberries are in the market but as yet are kardly quotable. The supply of oranges is large and the transfer pure. There is little at no largery and prices are shaded to further sales. Little is to be said regarding the dried fruit market, as business continues dull and drageting.

The wegetable market is fairly active and all varieties are in demand. The feeling for new potatoes is firmer without affecting prices. New onions continue in heavy over-supply and are weak at quotations. String beans are not plentiful and brought good prices.

Unready and Unripe States.
[Philadelyhia Record.]

When new States are admitted to the Union they ought to be able to stand alone without asking for Uncle Sam's assistance. The recent call for United States troops in Wyoming to keep the citizens known as "rustlers" from murdering other citizens known as "cattle lords" shows a deplorable in-ability upon the part of the civil power to maintain order or command respect. And now there is a loud call from Idaho for Federal soldiery to repress the striking miners at Cour d'Alene, who are stopping railway trains and making armed resistance to the employment of non-union men in the mines. These unready and unripe States could be much more cheaps and satisfactors. be much more cheaply and satisfactorbe much more cheaply and satisfactor-ily governed as Territories. They are a peril, politically considered, from the undue power which they exert as the equals of the most potential and popu-lous commonwealths in the United States Senate; and • it is doubtful whether the burden of State govern-ment is not more costly than advan-tageous in the promotion of the welfare quotable.
and the dispersion of the promotion of the welfare of their scattered inhabitants.

AN EXPENSIVE LEMONADE.

How the Treating Habit Eats Up a Man's

Money. [New York Times.] A gentleman of exceedingly temperate habits, but generous disposition, was taking a walk with his fourteen-year-old son not many Sundays ago, when an incident occurred that at once made him an inveterate enemy of the American custom of "treating." The couple were on upper Broadway, near a fashionable hotel. They had walked some distance, the weather was warm and the boy was thirsty. He suggeste that a lemonade would taste good. His father promptly assented to the suggestion, and was debating in his mind where to go when along came an intimate friend. Cordial greetings followed, and upon the invitation of the boy's father, who may be of the American custom of "treating vitation of the boy's father, who may be designated as Mr. H., the three went into the cafe of the fashionable hotel to get "something cooling." Seating themselves at a table they gave their respective orders, the boy asking for a lemonade with a straw. While waiting to be served, a gentleman approached the table and extended his hand toward Mr. H.'s friend, enthusiastically exclaiming: "Why, B., old man, how are you?" He turned out to be an old college chum of B.'s, and, after proper introduction, was invited by Mr. designated as Mr. H., the three went old college chum of B.'s, and, after proper introduction, was invited by Mr. H. to "sit down and have something." The waiter brought the three drinks first ordered, and was dispatched for a fourth. He had scarcely got out of sight when another gentleman joined the group. He was the traveling companion of Mr. B.'s friend, and became one of the party as a matter of course. He ordered a little cau de vie, and while waiting for that a Wall street friend of Mr. B.'s came in. He wanted everybody to drink with him, but Mr. H. havbody to drink with him, but Mr. H. hav ing set out to do the honors could not permit that, consequently a sixth check was brought and laid in front of the original victim. But that was not all. Before the party had time to raise all. Before the party had time to raise their glasses a seventh person appeared. He was 'well-known to both Mr. H. and Mr. B., and gladly accepted Mr. H.'s invitation to 'join us.' That little pile of checks spoiled the boy's enjoyment of his cooling beverage, and after his father had paid $1.85 and escaped with him to the street, he remarked sorrowfully: "Pa, I am sorry that I said anything about lemonade.

A Rabbit Attacks a Baby.

[Philadelphia inquirer.]

As an acceptable Easter present a friend sent the family of Mr. Hill, at No. 646 North Fortieth street, a pretty rabbit. An important member of the Hill family is a charming little girl baby, aged 4 months.

A day or two since Mrs. Hill, thinking the rabbit would interest the baby, put

A day or two since Mrs. Hill, thinking the rabbit would interest the baby, put it into her crib to see what she would do. To her surprise it turned out to be a question of what the rabbit would do, for, the lady being called out of the room for a moment, a terrific shriek was heard from the crib, and rushing into the room Mrs. Hill was horrified to see the rabbit lying across her child's face and nibbling one of its hands, from a finger of which it had already drawn blood.

Mrs. Hill seized the creature and threw it away from the crib. That it fell on a bed, instead of the floor, was an acci-dent, and no fault of hers, and after she had picked up the baby, who did not re-cover from the nervous shock of her adventure for nearly an hour, the rab-bit again leaped for the crib, with the evident purpose of continuing its attack on the child, though the latter was then out of its reach.

out of its reach.

Mr. Hill, on returning home, heard the story, and, being conscientiously unwilling to sell or give away so dangerous's beast, quietly exterminated the animal. He will decline any further presents of rabbits,
